EDITORIAL NOTES.

It was our good fortune to attend the Centennial exercises of the South Carolina College in Columbia the past week. This was in accordance with a fond wish of ours from the time these exercises were first announced. There is always something about a gathering of educational workers that appeals to us as do no other gatherings. For the most part they are freer from the regular routine that makes time at many other gatherings hang so heavy. But above all it is the association with workers whose enthusiasm for their work is most marked. As little as the outside world is willing to admit it, the teacher represents the very best there is in life and a measure of sacrifice attained in no other profession unless it be the ministry. In such a gathering as there was on this occasion are men of national reputation in their respective lines of work, the combined salary of a dozen or more of whom would not amount to the salary that is paid some bank official or other financial officer whose influence with his wealth is less felt than any one of the dozen or more less fortunate from a financial standpoint, but fortunate in the measure of service that they render to humanity, not only for what they accomplish, but for the spirit in which they go about it. It is never possible for us to attend a meeting of such workers without having our appreciation of their noble profession greatly enhanced and with a similar increase in our disgust at the lack of appreciation that is shown them for their services when pay day comes. The crime of the American people to-day is the small salaries that are paid these men and women who are most potent workers in the up-building of the nation.

The occasion that brought so many of these workers together was no mere passing incident. One hundred years in the history of an institution of learning is an achievement that is deserving of a most fitting observation. It is the time for her sons to show their interest in her by lending their presence and rallying to her support; it is also the time for other friends in educational work to show their appreciation of the work that has been accomplished by joining in the auspicious celebration. On this occasion there were the sons in great number whose devotion to their alma mater was shown by cheering at every mention of her name and by a tarring a fund for helping other less fortunate in coming to drink from the same fountain. The interest of other institutions of learning, both in and out of the State, was most fittingly shown by the large number of their representatives who were present to express their gratitude in the achievements of the past and their best wishes for a bright future for this historic college in the second century that it is now entering upon.

How profitable and pleasant it would be to make mention of the various speakers, space makes it necessary for only mention of a few and that very briefly. Perhaps of all the speakers, who responded to the invitation to participate in the exercises of this glad occasion, no one was more fortunate in what he had to say and in the manner of saying it than President Raymond of Union College, Schenectady, the college that John Jay was serving as president when he was called to the presidency of the South Carolina College at its opening a hundred years ago. From the very minute that he began with his very kind references to the chivalry and character of the people of the South, as these had been reflected in the large number of students that have come from this fair Southland to the college which he represented, to his close he had the audience, and from the rounds of applause that greeted him when he took his seat it seemed that the spirit of union was at its height. Perhaps nothing that he said in the fifteen or twenty minutes that he was speaking caught the ear of the audience more than his reference to young Rutledge from the College of Charleston, who, at Union College two years ago took the grand prize for the best essay on the subject, "The Right of a State to Secede," and his further reference to this same brilliant young Carolina orator who has just been chosen to represent that institution in the international oratorical contest. That was a very fine tribute he paid to the Southern schools and colleges when he said that to his college they had furnished 7 per cent. of the student body within the past twenty years, but that the per cent. of these who had been on the honor roll was much higher.

President Franklin Carter of Williams College, Massachusetts, proved a most entertaining speaker. Williams College, he said, was the college of Garfield, whose assassination occurred when he was at the depot on his way to it to take part in some exercises in connection with the founding of a new chair in the college, the choice for which had fallen upon a grandson of the South Carolina College, as the brilliant young professor who was to fill it was a graduate of Wofford College (this was Dr. Chas. Forster Smith, now of the University of Wisconsin), presided over by the college's most distinguished living educator, Dr. James H. Carlisle, the mention of whose name throughout the exercises brought round and round of applause as an expression of the esteem in which he is held by all Carolinians.

When Chancellor Wiggins of the University of the South began to call the roll of the faculty, of that institution, in which South Carolina has always had so great an interest, it seemed that this State had been furnishing it with about all its teaching force. Certainly the State has had every representation in that faculty that it could have reasonably hoped for, the chancellor himself being a most fitting representative of these sons of the Palmetto State who have achieved great things there. His was a happy message indeed, and he fully sustained himself as one of the greatest college presidents of the country.

Other speakers of whom special mention should be made were Chancellor Hill of the University of Georgia, the brilliant lawyer who gave up a lucrative law practice to respond to the call of his state to accept the head of her state university and as delightful a speaker as one rarely ever hears; Chairman Barringer of the University of Virginia, whose bold plea for the education that makes the scholar and the gentleman rather than that makes for utilitarianism was a masterpiece; and President Randolph of the College of Charleston, who spoke most fittingly of the kind relations that existed between the other colleges of the state and the oldest of them all with the exception of the classic institution represented by this youngest member of the college presidents of the South.

It is always at the banquet of occasions of this kind that the very best speeches are to be heard. This was especially true of the banquet given on Tuesday evening to the alumni and its invited guests. No speech of this whole Centennial celebration reached the high mark of that of President Northrop of the University of Minnesota in his response to the toast, "The Universities and the Colleges of the United States." President Northrop has a commanding appearance and is a fine representative of the latter day president for a big university who must be a man of strong constitution and fine executive qualifications. All these qualifications he has and more. He is not only possessed of the very best business qualifications, but he is a finished speaker who presents what he has to say in a way that impresses. His speech was a most businesslike plea for the state to do all it can for the education of its sons and daughters. Representing a university with 3,800 pupils and backed by an appropriation of more than a half million a year, he had a right to speak upon this subject, and the great misfortune of it is that the members of the legislature could not have heard what he had to say upon the duties of a state along this line. The suggestion made after the exercises were over that he be invited to address the legislature was a very wise one, and it would be very appropriate to have a man from a state that has done so well for its youth to come and let the mem-

The Secret of Success.

Forty million bottles of August Flower sold in the United States alone since its introduction! And the demand for it is still growing. Isn't that a fine showing of success? Don't it prove that August Flower has had unflinching success in the cure of indigestion and dyspepsia—the two greatest enemies of health and happiness? Does it not afford the best evidence that August Flower is a sure specific for all stomach and intestinal disorders?—that it has proved itself the best of all liver regulators? August Flower has a matchless record of over thirty-five years in curing the ailing millions of these distressing complaints—a success that is becoming wider in its scope every day, at home and abroad, as the fame of August Flower spreads. Trial bottles, 25c; regular size, 75c. For sale by McMaster Co.

I've been a great deal happier since I have given up thinking about what is easy and pleasant and being discontented because I couldn't have my own will. Our life is determined for us, and it makes the mind very free when we give up wishing and only think of being what is laid upon us and doing what is given us to do.—George Eliot.

A Grim Tragedy

is daily enacted in thousands of homes, as Death claims in each one another victim of consumption or pneumonia. But when coughs and colds are properly treated the tragedy is averted. F. G. Huntley, of Oaklandon, Ind., writes: "My wife had the consumption, and three doctors gave her up. Finally she took Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, which cured her, and today she is well and strong." It kills the germs of all diseases. One dose relieves. Guaranteed at 50c and $1.00 by McMaster Co., Obeard Drug Co., J. H. McMaster & Co., druggists. Trial bottle free.

Say "Murray's."

When you've got a bad cough just say "MURRAY'S." If a druggist gives you anything but Murray's Horehound, Mullen and Far you're not getting the best and surest cough remedy. Make him give you Murray's. Acts quickly and you get a 50c size bottle for 35c. Every druggist has it.

He who expresses his willingness to die for a woman always reserves the right to fix the date of his demise.

The Kind You Have Always Bought Bears the Signature of

What You Swear to When You Make Your Return for Taxation.

It is a remarkable fact that comparatively few taxpayers appreciate the comprehensiveness and seriousness of the oath they take when making returns of their property for taxation. The affidavit at the bottom of each return is usually signed by the affiant without reading it—without knowing its contents. Really, the affidavit should be read and thoroughly understood before the return itself is made out, so that the taxpayer may see and know what is expected of him. And instead of being printed in small type, as it now is, the solemn and far-reaching obligation should be in large type and occupy a conspicuous place on the blank returns.

As this is the time of year for making returns, we publish below the affidavit each party is required to make:

I, _____ do solemnly swear, that I have listed above all the Real and Personal Property Moneys, Credits over and above my indebtedness, Investments in Bond, Stocks, Joint Stock Companies, or otherwise belonging to me, or under my control as Manager, Holder, or as Husband, Parent, Guardian, Trustee, Executor, Administrator, Receiver, Accounting Officer, Agent, Attorney or Factor, on the 1st day of January, 1905, which are subject to taxation under the laws of this State, and that I have returned the same at what I honestly believe to be the market value and that the above list, as furnished by me to the County Auditor, is a true and faithful return of all the property which I am required by law to list; and further, that I am _____ liable to the Poll Tax.—Lancaster Review.

Sickening, Shivering Fits of ague and malaria, can be relieved and cured with Electric Bitters. This is a pure, tonic medicine; of especial benefit in malaria, for it exerts a true curative influence on the disease, driving it entirely out of the system. It is much to be preferred to quinine, having none of this drug's bad after-effects. E. S. Munday, of Henrietta, Tex., writes: "My brother was very low with malarial fever and jaundice, till he took Electric Bitters, which saved his life. At McMaster Co., Obeard Drug Co., J. H. McMaster & Co. drug stores; price 50c, guaranteed.

Profits From Small Farms.

A hint of the possibilities of the growth of American farm production is conveyed in the statement that the average gross returns an acre from cultivated land in this country is only $10.50 per acre, and from land devoted to the growing of cereals but $8.02 an acre. In Great Britain the intensive system of farming has brought the average gross returns up to within the neighborhood of $30 an acre. But few would consider that even $30 per acre is anything like the full average-producing power of cultivated land. If ever the labor supply and cost approach the European level, American land owners could afford to work their farms to the full capacity. Abundant labor combined with American energy and improved machinery, would give the world new ideas of the producing power of farm.—Ex.

Straight Facts.

A whole lot of fancy phrases can be written about remedies, but it takes facts to prove anything—good straight facts. And the strongest fact you ever heard of is Tannopline is the best cure for piles on the market. It cures absolutely. Has a healing, soothing effect from the start. All druggists have it for $1.00 a jar. Ask for Tannopline and don't dare take a substitute.

Do we not drift through life giving each other crumbs off the loaf that will only seem to break in that paltry way? Yet the crumbs have the heaven and sweetness of the loaf in them; the commonest little wayside things are charged full of whatever is really within us. God's own love is broken small for us. "This is my body broken for you."—A. D. T. Whitney.

The many friends of G. H. Hauson, engineer L. E. & W. R. R., at present living in Lima, O., will be pleased to know of his recovery from threatened kidney disease. He says, "I was cured by using Foley's Kidney Cure, which I recommended to all, especially trainmen who are usually similarly afflicted." Sold by McMaster and Co.

Curious Pension Statistics.

Some of our pension statistics are curious. For example, we learn that there are still on the rolls three pensioners of the Revolutionary war, which was brought to an end over 120 years ago. Of pensions accredited to the War of 1812, there still remain 919, while of the Mexican war no fewer than 13,055 survive. Of those accredited to the Revolutionary war, one is a widow and two are daughters. The report shows that pension payments are made to people, residing in every State and Territory in the union, and in almost every known country on the globe. Among the States, Ohio leads in the amount of pension money paid annually to its citizens, with Pennsylvania second, New York third, and Illinois and Indiana following closely. At the date of the report, there were 4,910 pensioners residing outside of the United States, and they drew $72,440.69 in the last fiscal year. Nearly half of this amount went to persons in Canada. Quarterly pension vouchers were sent besides to persons in Mexico, South America and every country in Europe, the Azores, the Barbadoes, China, the Comoro Isles, East and South Africa, Samoa, the Seychelles Islands, Siam and St. Martin. It shows that the pension bureau was a busy office last year. More than 268,000 cases were passed upon, and 153,000 certificates were issued. No fewer than 108,114 applications were rejected, of which 93,000 were thrown out on medical and 24,000 on legal grounds.—Success.

Spilled Her Beauty.

Harriet Howard, of 209 W. 34th St., New York, at one time had her beauty spoiled with skin trouble. She writes: "I had Salt Rheum or eczema for years but nothing would cure it until I used Bucklen's Arnica Salve." A quick and sure healer for cuts, burns and sores. 25c at McMaster Co., Obeard Drug Co., J. H. McMaster & Co. drug stores.
